

It seems very strange to me that in the midst of the zeitgeist of "diversity," you would opt for corporate hegemony of the media. Journalistic objectivity can never be obtained from a single source, no matter how well-intentioned. Cross-media advertising packages are an unpatriotic substitute for freedom of the press.